

Simple cosmic guidance for truth-seekers in a hurry.

The small print.

Boring stuff that you ought to know.

Simple cosmic guidance for truth-seekers in a hurry.

As you are likely aware, I'm neither a doctor, psychiatrist nor any other type of health-care professional or therapist.

(However damn fine I look in my nurse's kit).

Nor am I qualified to give legal or monetary advice.

(Probably a good thing).

Therefore any advice you receive from me, no matter how illuminating, will not replace the services of a bonafide doctor/shrink/solicitor or financial wizard.

And UK law insists that I state my readings are for 'entertainment purposes'.

Which is a drag. Though it's true that however much faith I have in my work, Tarot & Astrology can never be guaranteed with absolute certainty. Therefore I cannot be held responsible for any decisions or actions you may take, based on advice from my readings.

Which means that you can't sue me. ☺

And if for some curious cultural or political reason, astrology or tarot are illegal in your locality, then you access this website at your own risk.

Gulp.

And agree not to hold me culpable for any legal hokum you may incur.

That's fair, surely?

For my part, I will never judge your actions, either past, present or future. And your readings will be strictly confidential. No names or any details of your circumstances, will ever be given to a third party - except in the (highly unlikely) event that not to do so, would put you or someone else at risk.

(If you were about to murder someone, for instance).

I know. Forget you read that bit.
